Tok Sen is a unique healing art founded only in Northern Thailand (Lanna) using a special wooden hammer and wedge to clear blocked energy. It uses mechanical and sound vibration, working deeply through the fascia and muscles.

Tok Sen is thought to date back over 3,000 years and is still practiced in Thai villages after having worked all the day long in the fields. The tradition is completely oral, and it has been passed down through the farming families.

A Basic Thai Massage training (any style, any school) is required in order to take this course.
